HOW TO GET YOUR CIVIL WAR ANCESTORS' MILITARY AND PENSION RECORDS

Civil War Pension and Military Service records are kept at the National Archives and are requested on Archives Forms 85 and 86 respectively.

1. What's the difference between a Military record and a Pension file?

A military record may contain a soldier's enlistment papers, muster rolls, indicating whether he was on duty or excused at a particular time during his service because of a wound or sickness. It may contain his discharge papers.

A Pension file will contain proof of a soldier's service, which may include discharge papers, details of his service, affidavits from fellow soldiers, statements regarding spouse and dependents, medical information, pension increases, his widow's pension, his physical description and places where he lived after the war.

2. How do you obtain the forms?

Any of the Archives' forms may be ordered from its website at:

<http://www.archives.gov/genealogy/military/civil-war/>

The form(s) will usually arrive within a week.

3. How many forms should you request?

Probably two. Each request for records requires a separate form. If you have more than one ancestor, you'll need at least one form for each.

4. What information will the Archives need to know on the form?

The more information you can provide about your ancestor the better, but minimally:

- a) Soldier's name
- b) Branch of service
- c) State from which he served
- d) Which war / dates of service
- e) Union or Confederate

5. How long will it take to receive the information you requested?

The Military Service record will arrive in 8 weeks; the Pension file will arrive in 12-16 weeks. Paying the fee by charge card will expedite your order. Check payments will need to clear before an order is completed.

6. Unable to order online?

You may mail your request for forms to:

National Archives & Records Administration
Attn: NWCTB
700 Pennsylvania Avenue NW
Washington, D.C. 20408-0001
Phone: 1-86-NARA-NARA
